What are Cookies?

Cookies are small files that are used to store information when a user visits a website. Cookies can be put into two groups – session cookies and persistent cookies. A session cookie is only accessible while your browser is open, and is deleted as soon as you navigate away from the website. A persistent cookie can remain on your computer for a pre-defined period of time, or until they are forcibly deleted.

Cookies are often used to recognize return users and remember information about them, such as their browsing activity, to make finding and using a website quicker.

We do not use persistent cookies. We do not use cookies to give us access to your computer or any information about you, other than the information you choose to share with us. Most web browsers automatically accept cookies, but you can usually modify your browser settings to decline cookies if you prefer. This may prevent you in using our website fully.
